Go Lobos in Rio!

Six University of New Mexico alumni and one head coach are competing against the world's best on the biggest international stage as they head to the 2016 Summer Olympic Games in Rio de Janeiro.

Former Lobo student-athletes Cameron Bairstow (Australia, basketball), Gavin Green (Malaysia, golf), Courtney Frerichs (United States, athletics), Jarrin Solomon (Trinidad and Tobago, athletics) and Ross Millington (Great Britain, athletics) are all looking for gold during the 19-day games in Brazil. Also, former UNM student Jillion Potter, will be playing rugby for the United States.

Support Incoming STEM Students by Volunteering at "Discover Your Science!"

The Discover Your Science Festival is an opportunity for incoming STEM students to learn more about science majors, research projects, cutting-edge technology, student organizations and student support programs at the University of New Mexico. It is a celebration of science, an introduction to new friends, and a jump-start on planning a science career.

We need you! There are a lot of options to help out, including half day, full day, and individual time slots.
